Call for Papers: American University Law Review Annual Symposium 2021: Privacy in the Age of Emergency

February 5, 2021

American University Washington College of Law
Washington, D.C.

The American University Law Review is proud to announce its annual symposium to be held Friday, February 5, 2021. The symposium, titled “Privacy in the Age of Emergency,” is dedicated to exploring and analyzing the nexus of privacy laws and the COVID-19 pandemic. Traditionally, this event is dedicated to exploring a burgeoning area in the legal field, and few events in recent history have disrupted standard affairs than COVID-19. Almost every sector of law — including labor and employment, criminal justice, administrative law, healthcare, and beyond, — has and continues to face novel legal questions in the “new normal” prompted by this ongoing public health crisis. AULR* is placing a call for submissions, including legal articles and other scholarly commentaries related to this topic, for publication and potential discussion at its February 2021 symposium.

Suggested Topic Areas

Police Surveillance and Public Health
Surveillance of Disease
Student and Worker Surveillance
Balancing Employer Liability and Employee/Customer Privacy
Communication as Surveillance
Healthcare Privacy
How COVID-19 Affects the National Privacy Discussion
Potential Privacy-Related Federal Legislation
International and Comparative Approaches Balancing Privacy and Safety
Contact Tracing and Other Innovative Technological Responses

Important Dates

January 7, 2021: Final Manuscript Submission Date for Consideration
February 5, 2021: Annual Symposium Event at American University
Washington College of Law (Claudio Grossman Hall), Washington, D.C.

How To Submit

Please submit manuscripts to the Law Review through Scholastica. Authors should include a brief abstract and a curriculum vitae with their manuscript. For more information about Scholastica submissions, see the “Submissions” page on <http://www.aulawreview.org>.

Submission Guidelines

Length: The Law Review values succinct arguments. We strongly prefer manuscripts less than 25,000 words in length, including footnotes. Manuscripts that exceed 30,000 words will be considered only in exceptional circumstances.

Format: Text and citations should conform to The Bluebook: A Uniform System of Citation (20th ed. 2015). Manuscripts should use footnotes, as opposed to endnotes.

Authorship: The Law Review seeks to publish authors with diverse backgrounds and perspectives. The Law Review welcomes submissions from professors, judges, and practicing lawyers. We will not consider submissions from students outside the journal’s own membership.

About the American University Law Review

Founded in 1952, the American University Law Review is the oldest and largest student-run publication at the American University Washington College of Law (WCL), and publishes six issues each year. As WCL’s flagship law review, the Law Review is ranked among the top fifty law journals in the nation and is the highest-ranked and most-cited journal at WCL, according to the Washington and Lee University Law Library.

The Law Review receives over 1,500 submissions annually and publishes a wide range of legal scholarship from professors, judges, practicing lawyers, and renowned legal thinkers. The Law Review has published articles or commentary by Supreme Court Chief Justices Warren Burger, William Rehnquist, and Earl Warren, as well as Associate Justices Hugo Black, Ruth Bader Ginsburg, and Arthur Goldberg. The Law Review has also published articles or commentary by prominent legal figures such as Stephen Bright, Paul Butler, Erwin Chemerinsky, Tom Goldstein, Paul Kamenar, Judge Paul Michel, Judge Stephen Reinhardt, Nadine Strossen, and Laurence Tribe.

In addition to serving as an academic forum for legal scholarship and a research tool for professors and practitioners, the Law Review is committed to developing the writing and research skills of its staff. The Law Review showcases student-written pieces by publishing notes and comments, unrestricted in terms of subject or area of the law, in each issue. In support of the staff, the Law Review has an esteemed faculty advisory board, including Professors Ira P. Robbins, Jonas Anderson, Elizabeth Beske, Barlow Burke, Janie Chuang, Walter Effross, Christine Haight Farley, Paul Figley, Amanda Frost, Egon Guttman, Mary Siegel, David Snyder, and Stephen Wermiel.

The Law Review is the only journal in the nation to publish an annual issue dedicated to decisions of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit regarding patent law, international trade, government contracts, veterans affairs, and trademark law. A member of the National Conference of International Law Journals, the Law Review is also indexed in LexisNexis, Westlaw, HeinOnline, the Index to Legal Periodicals, and the Resource Index/Current Law Index. Each edition of the Law Review is distributed nationally and abroad to law school libraries, private law firms, public legal organizations, and individual subscribers.

With seventy years of publications, the Law Review has a strong national and international alumni network, including judges and practitioners in every field.

The Law Review also houses an online companion publication called the Forum. The Forum serves as a platform to generate timely discussion of scholarship published in the Law Review's print issues. It enables the academic discourse within the Law Review's print issues to continue after publication. Responses are solicited from leading practitioners in the field by our staff. The Forum also creates more opportunity to advance student-written scholarship by publishing notes and comments written by Law Review staff members. Like the print publication, Forum pieces undergo a rigorous editing process and are available on HeinOnline, WestLaw, and LexisNexis, as well as the Law Review's website.
